LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

We are delighted to share that the 2023-2024 fiscal year for Levine Museum of the New South was one of growth, innovation and remarkable accomplishments, thanks to our generous supporters. Our community engagement soared to 204k as we unveiled new, digital technologies and learning opportunities that enabled us to connect with constituents in exciting ways.

- Over 400 educators benefited from our free professional development workshops, and we hosted our first ever Summer Institute. We are proud that our school programs continue to provide meaningful local history resources for teachers and students through online history case studies and field trips.
- There were 120,000 downloads of Our New South podcast – a first for the Museum, seeing downloads from all 50 states as well as internationally. It was so successful, that a second season is in the works, debuting in the winter of 2025.
- Over 56k engagements took place through our public programs and exhibitions, including our Charlotte: Moving Forward, Looking Back exhibition (opened March 2024), and our Grier Heights: Community is Family traveling exhibition.

While we are proud of what we have achieved, we recognize that there is much more to be accomplished in the year ahead. We will continue to find creative ways to engage with community members while we pursue a new permanent home for the Museum. Our vision is a groundbreaking space that transcends traditional museum boundaries by blending world-class exhibits and experiences with the welcoming atmosphere of a community center, and a place for visitors of all ages to engage in a dynamic environment that fosters conversation, creativity and community connectedness.

We are excited for the journey ahead, and we hope you will join us!

EXHIBITIONS & PROGRAMS

The programs we offer and the collaborations with other community groups is a bedrock of our work. It is through these community engagements that Levine Museum of the New South embodies its roots to be a community collaborator, convener and a museum without walls.

Charlotte: Moving Forward, Looking Back Exhibition

Our latest exhibition showcases the people, places, events, and ideas that shaped Charlotte. It emphasizes the importance of understanding the city's past as a step towards investing in future progress for all Charlotteans.

“Although we’ve lived in Charlotte since the ‘70s and have been exposed to Charlotte history many times at the Levine Museum of the New South and other places, I always learn something new at every exhibit.”

- Exhibition visitor, 2024

Southern Accents

A program series that presents contemporary work by experts, artists and researchers on southern history and culture. These events are community favorites given their range of topics and experiential engagement opportunities.

Field Trips and Group Tours

Providing educational opportunities for students and adults alike, through engaging content instruction and Q&A.

Author Talks

The opportunity to hear from contemporary authors about topics that intrigue, provide thought-provoking dialogue and promote engagement with audience members.

“I’m so appreciative of the learning journey - more nonprofits could benefit from this kind of courageous conversation.”

- Program attendee, 2024

Jonathan Eig

Family Days

Celebrations of important holidays and cultural traditions for the community at large that educate a diverse audience and foster understanding about local communities that shape the region.

Community Conversations

The essence of community is to gather and have discussions in a safe and transparent manner. Led by our guest facilitators, our community conversations provide just that through roundtable discussion paired with conversation starters that allow our attendees to share and connect with each other.
